The Church of England's new Festival of Creation in Christ was established by General Synod and is celebrated on the first Sunday of September. The festival has ecumenical roots, particularly in the Catholic Church's Season of Creation. (Peter Robinson, Dean of Derby Cathedral, describes the festival more fully in a letter posted elsewhere on the Benefice website.) Inspired by Pope Francis's writings, Laudato Sí and Fratelli Tutti, the festival highlights the connection between faith, creation and responsibility. The Dean encourages parishioners to read Hope for All Creation together, helping churches turn reflection into practical action for future generations. The Festival will provide an opportunity to thank God for creation and reflect on humanity's responsibility to care for it.
